Basis.(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—After notification was received from the railroad commission last night that a 3.6 cents fare would be put in effect in Wisconsin commencing January 15, Gov. Joseph L. Philipp announced that a conference would be held today to plan a legal method of resistance.

Preparations for the legal battle to "defend Wisconsin's right to regulate railroad fares within the state," were begun immediately by Governor Philipp and J. J. Blaine, attorney general and governor-elect.

An injunction order to restrain the ruling from becoming effective will be sought at once, Gov. Philipp said, after a conference with the attorney general.

The order had been anticipated, and data for a legal fight prepared by the attorney general's office, Mr. Blaine said, added that "legal relief probably would be only temporary," and that "congress should act at once to repeal that part of the transportation law which gives the interstate commerce commission power over state rates."

"Right to Last Ditch" will be waged to prevent the new rates from becoming effective in Wisconsin, it was announced by C. D. Horn, secretary of the state railroad commission.

FEDERAL ORDER ON FARES IS ISSUED

Washington, Dec. 2.—Railroads operating in Wisconsin were ordered by the interstate commerce commission to put in effect immediately increases in intrastate fares commensurate with the advances authorized in interstate tariffs.

LOCAL AGENTS FIGURE UP RAISE IN RATES

Increase in passenger rates within Wisconsin, ordered yesterday by the interstate commerce commission, will add 3.6 cents to the cost of travel for each mile, a little more than a half a cent. While the order states that the rate will be in effect on January 15 next, no additional rates will be charged until new schedules are made up, it was announced by the commission today.

No information has yet been received by the ticket agents of either the C. M. &amp; St. P. or the N. W. &amp; W. R. R. as to whether they will also be charged on Pullman cars. The roads submitted evidence to show that under the existing 3 cent rate, a combined fare of $2.40 would be charged for a round trip to Chicago. The new rates will mean no change in the cost of the trip to Chicago. About 46 cents would be added to the expense of the trip to Milwaukee, the expense of the trip to Madison, Wis., would be approximately $1.51, an increase of 20 per cent. The general rule is 20 per cent.

GOVERNORS ACT TO AID FARMERS

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 2.—Encouraged by lively discussions at yesterday's session, the conference of governors in twelfth annual session, held at the Pennsylvania hotel, continued its deliberations.

Because of delays which kept it to the first day's proceedings, the conference was unable to prepare for a continuation of its deliberations.

It was decided to use the influence of the body to secure federal legislation for the benefit of farmers over the country. A committee of five governors will be sent to Washington to urge refunding of the American farm loan.

It was also decided to urge the federal government to take steps to reduce the losses suffered through bad transportation facilities and a declining market.

Story of Hamon's Death Told by Chauffeur Who Took Girl From Dallas

Driver Gives Sworn Statement of Tale Told by Fleeing Woman of Killing Wealthy Man in Hotel at Ardmore, Okla.

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 2.—With publication of a sworn statement by E. W. Sallis, chauffeur of Dallas, Texas, giving details of a drive between Dallas and Cisco with a "young lady," who told him she had shot a "wealthy" man in a hotel at Ardmore Sunday night, November 21, many persons here today began to discount the story of the alleged "accidental shooting" of Jake L. Hamon, republican national committeeman, in a hotel that night which resulted in his death.

Hamon's business manager, has maintained the wounding of Mr. Hamon was the result of the "accidental discharge" of a pistol he was cleaning.

The Sallis statement, made public today by Russell R. Brown, county attorney, was witnessed by two members of the Dallas police department.

CHAUFFEUR TELLS STORY OF MRS. HAMON'S FLIGHT

Dallas, Texas, Dec. 2.—The story of Mrs. Hamon's flight as told by E. W. Sallis, chauffeur, is as follows: It was the morning of Nov. 21, between 7 and 8. The woman jumped inside my cab and beckoned to me. "Is there an aviation club anywhere around?" she asked me.

She was nervous and kept looking around. She pulled down a heavy black veil.

"Yes," I said. "Take me out to it in a hurry, please," she ordered.

At the field I ran the car up near the machines. She got out. A man came up.

"Whaddya want?" he exclaimed. "Are you the aviator?" the woman asked.

"No. He won't be down for an hour or so. Wanta fly?"

"Do you think he'd take a passenger to San Antonio?" she asked. "I'm in a hurry," she said.

"I can't help you out," she muttered. Then she turned to me. "Drive me around a bit."

After a while she stopped me. "I've got to go in good running shape for a three or four day drive—say to San Antonio," she asked. "Yep," I said.

Pays $100 in Advance.

"How much will it cost?" I told her I'd have to ask at the station. She drove there. The boss asked her $500 a day, and she paid down $100. Then she gave me a check for $100. She asked me to take her to the depot and get the money back. The station agent refused the money. Then she went in and got the money while I was loading some suitcases.

We started out. There wasn't much talking between Dallas and Waxahatchie, but she was awfully nervous.

CABINET RUMORS FLY THICK AND FAST

Lowden Mentioned as Secretary of Treasury, Weeks for Navy.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Copyright 1920, Janesville Daily)

Washington, Dec. 2.—Cabinet rumors fly thick and fast as President-elect Harding approaches Washington. The sets of opinions are not to be encountered here. One is that Mr. Harding not only hasn't committed himself to anybody but hasn't dismissed anybody either. Another is that concrete terms are so abundant that accurate speculation about personnel. The other is that a half dozen names are being considered for each position. The situation is being discussed in the hope of lining up a list of cabinet eligibles.

From the latter group come all the information. And the last crop of ideas waited here conveys the impression that a plan is afoot to name Mr. Lowden as secretary of the treasury, Mr. Weeks as a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and while a member of the senate committed to the navy. Senator Weeks is a banker and was one of the group of republicans who voted for the federal reserve act. Although he is represented as not anxious for any cabinet post whatsoever, there is a sentiment among his friends that he would be happy in the secretaryship of the treasury than the navy particularly because he is a banker by experience and likes finance.

Heretofore it has been supposed that Gov. Lowden, who won national attention by his business administration in Illinois, would become secretary of the treasury if he wanted it. Unquestionably Mr. Lowden can have anything in the cabinet he wants. It is said that he himself is not eager to go to Washington or anywhere else in public office and that Mr. Harding will have to do a great deal of persuading to get Mr. Lowden away from his farm in Illinois.

As for secretary of state, friends of Mr. Elihu Root are insistent that Mr. Root eventually will be chosen. It is an open secret that while some of the original Harding men can't see how Mr. Root's views would fit in the Harding administration they admit that Mr. Root has a prestige throughout the United States which would give the Harding cabinet a good start with public opinion. In other words, they admit that the secretary of state will have to be the top-liner of the cabinet this time.

Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania is of the first choice with most of the Harding men who believe that Knox reflects better than anybody else the views of the president-elect on foreign policy. But Mr. Knox's health is the doubtful factor. So many he doesn't want cabinet responsibilities and would prefer to stay in the senate. He is, however, could be more useful as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee if Senator Lodge were to be taken into the cabinet. Some of those who want Mr. Lodge to go into the cabinet are thinking of the vexed question of leadership in the republican senate. With Senator Penrose ill, the duties of leadership would fall largely on Mr. Lodge. And there isn't an altogether harmonious feeling in the senate about Mr. Lodge.

Now Leadership Likely
Everybody's good humor was more or less tested during the treaty fight of the last session of congress. Mr. Lodge was between the "irreconcilables" and the "reservationists." There has been some discussion about the move of the treaty fight would be healed by an entirely new deal in the senate. Such a plan contemplates the promotion of Senator Lodge to the position of secretary of state though it is insisted by friends of Mr. Lodge that he prefers to remain at the head of the foreign policy through congress.

SENSATIONAL CIVIL CASE IS ADJOURNED

Due to the absence of witnesses the $12,000 damage suit brought by C. J. Capman against W. Shimeall will be set over to the March term of court by Judge George Grimm. Announcement of this fact was made by the attorneys today.

Both parties to the action are farmers in Turtle township. The case results from an alleged feud between the two farmers. The information charging that Shimeall carried on a policy of hate and destruction against Capman, his family and on his property. It is charged the defendant fired the Capman home on January 19 and tore down fences. Another allegation is that Shimeall allowed swine to run in a growing beet field owned by Capman.

That Shimeall killed chickens, and cattle, destroyed fruit trees by cutting a grape around them and made threats to kill the plaintiff is also alleged.

The case was the most sensational of civil cases on the present court calendar.

10 Miles an Hour May Be Declared Speeding, Grimm

Interpretations of the state laws governing the use of motor vehicles was clearly given by Circuit Judge George Grimm, who yesterday trying the case against Earl Connors.

The court held that an auto driver may be driving slower than 15 miles an hour along a city street or highway and be guilty of violating the statute of exceeding the speed limit. The rate of 15 miles an hour is the maximum speed which any driver may legally drive over city streets and highways.

The law says that a driver should never travel at a greater rate of speed than the conditions and circumstances must be fairly considered. The law means that the driver must use ordinary care and judgment as usually exercised by an ordinary person, cited the court.

Under conditions of traffic dangers a speed of 10 miles an hour or less could be held as a violation of the law. The statute was held to cover the ordinary judgment where there is the probability of an accident.

Provisions of the law require that an auto driver stop after an accident. The same statute requires that a driver, or auto owner who figures in an accident must give his name and address to any bystander or person who requests this information. If an accident occurs, it was held, the driver must stop at once or be requested or commanded by any person. Such a request does not have to come from an officer of the law.

ROTARIANS SEE URGENT NEED OF NEW HIGH SCHOOL

One of the most interesting meetings of the Rotary club occurred Wednesday. Prin. George Bassford, who was a guest, brought home the high school, saying the class periods would necessarily be increased so that the entire day would be given over to education. Even the noon hour will need to be utilized to accommodate 320 pupils who will make up the total after February 1, 1921. The building was erected to accommodate 350 students.

Under present conditions cloak rooms have been dilapidated and every inch of space. Children must walk three flights of stairs to dispose of their wraps. There are five toilets for 350 girls. Four hundred boys have access to 4 toilets.

Ventilation is bad, he said. The Y. M. C. A. is donating its facilities for use of the boys' gymnasium for basketball, etc. After listening to Mr. Bassford his hearers were favorable to the plan of starting a new school. The council can and probably will see that arrangements are made immediately for the new school.

Mr. Webster, Melbourne, Australia, connected with the International Y. M. C. A., talked in most glowing of a campaign with General Smith in Africa.

He detailed conditions in Africa and of the campaign which is being carried on during the time of the war in Europe. He spoke of changing conditions in the Far East and the development of the Japanese empire in the East. Africa, which was linked to the German campaign. He said that great changes were taking place in the Far East and that the people must hang together as an offset to the colored peril which was being fomented and strengthened. He referred however, by the way, to the change taking place through education and enlightenment and that men of the dark race of the East are adopting modern methods, which was an indication of the acceptance of new thought.

James S. Fifield spoke, pointedly on the need of changing country roads as well as city streets to avoid railroad crossings. He referred particularly to the Emerald Grove road east of the city, where the railroad crosses twice within half a mile and the straightening of the road north of the St. Paul railway at that point, thus avoiding two particularly dangerous crossings. He referred to the railroad crossing at the south end of Monksville and pointed out that two crossings on Eastern avenue could be avoided by filling in at the north end of the St. Paul track and north side of the St. Paul track, joining use of the dirt fill from the new street program which is to be carried on within the next few years.

Victor P. Richardson spoke of the dangerous crossing on the Hanover road where a number of accidents have taken place and suggested, at a have taken place and suggested, at a slight expense with the cooperation of the railroad, the highway could be depressed to pass beneath the railroad.

Rev. R. D. Vinter, a guest from Delavan, spoke of the desire for a Rotary club at Delavan to help eliminate grade crossings.

Pardon Hearing for Grace Lusk Wednesday

(By Associated Press.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—The application for pardon of Grace Lusk, Waukesha school teacher, who was sentenced in 1917 to nineteen years in prison for rape, was heard today. Governor Philipp next Wednesday on his last day of hearings, L. C. Whitet, executive secretary said today. They have been filed by Dr. Lusk of Mosinee, father of the girl, and the case is on the calendar for consideration.

An unusually large number of applications for pardon have been received by the governor this month. It was said at his office today that questions for release of twenty prisoners have been made while the usual number is under twelve. A belief that the outgoing secretary would be lenient is responsible largely for this condition, it was said.

Governor Philipp returned to Madison from Milwaukee late yesterday and today is in conference with the State Board of Public Affairs on consideration of departmental budgets for the coming biennium.

CLOTHIERS PREDICT CUT PRICES FOR '21

12 to 20 Percent Drop in Woolens—Silk Hose Price Cut in Two.

Janesville clothing dealers are pondering over the future of woolens with perplexity, and in the meantime, cutting profits down to the very bone in hopes of improved conditions by spring.

Woolen goods will be cheaper but still at a price considerably above pre-war prices. The bottom has dropped out of the silk market, consequently a radical decline in the price of silk hose, shirts and all other silk wearing apparel.

The majority of clothing stores now being sold by Janesville merchants is at a loss according to several dealers. It is claimed present conditions demand the sale of men's clothes, 10 and 15 per cent below wholesale. This is caused by the buying slump coming on stock that was bought from the wholesale firms right when woolens were at the peak of high prices. The dealers in demand several of the retailers' pockets for most of the woolen mills had unloaded their high priced goods in April last year to be delivered for wool and winter trade in August and September.

Suits Coming Down
Suits that have been sold in the fall for $75 and $80 will sell for $50 and $55 under the spring schedule, and $17.50 under the spring schedule. Several of the merchants declare that the "good old days" of $25 suits are never to return without the labor costs of the business are radically cut—what the farmer got in that price. Such a price demands that the "cut, make and trim" costs of men's suits be slashed in half, and this would require labor at 25 cents an hour. Good woolens for the spring are expected to sell from $5 to $6 a yard as compared to $8 and $12.

Mills Are Slack
The wool market is practically extinct at the present time. Rock county farmers who pooled their wool have not been able to get a price for their product. This results from the general shut down of the woolen mills.

"Prices quoted to me show that soft woolens will be about 25 per cent cheaper and hard woolens 15 per cent cheaper than the high prices of last summer," declared H. A. Ford, simply of the Rock county store. "The wool from the time raw wool is sold until a suit is taken by the farmer, the wool and the mills made exceedingly high profits making the cloth, the tailor got his high price for making the suit and the dealer made a good profit. Now the winter is being squeezed out and we hope for better conditions the coming year."

All Must Cut

According to all the merchants there are no prospects of any one pyramiding profits under new conditions. Each factor of the woolen trade will have to take a decided reduction in profits. Woolen mills which have been closed down are gradually starting up and putting spring goods on the market. The price in the silk prices has been the largest of any in the garment trade for the people must hang together as an offset to the colored peril which was being fomented and strengthened. He referred however, by the way, to the change taking place through education and enlightenment and that men of the dark race of the East are adopting modern methods, which was an indication of the acceptance of new thought.

Voice of the People

Editor Gazette:

The one buck law is considered a failure in its purpose by experienced hunters and residents in the deer country. Of course it greatly reduces the number of deer shipped but I doubt if the law causes less to be killed than under the old law. Personally, I have heard from reliable sources that many deer have been shot and left in the woods, food for wolves and coyotes. Under the present law many hunters shoot at any thing in the deer family, if they get a buck or a doe, it is left where it falls. It is difficult to distinguish a buck from a doe in the woods unless it is standing or walking, but most of them are seen on the run. If at all, why not start the ball rolling now to have the "one" buck law repealed? If necessary to protect the deer, I think this a much better way of protecting the deer.

Editor of The Gazette:

In the Gazette last night a story was printed telling of plans of the Chamber of Commerce to discontinue publication of its own magazine. I was glad to see this. It was stated that the periodical had agreed to publish the periodical for two years for a total of $2400. But it also said I was going to sell a press of $800.

These statements are erroneous. Inasmuch as it might create the impression that I am reducing my equipment or that I had undertaken anything of such a ridiculous nature, I wish to make a correction. I am not going to sell any part of my equipment which can be used in the ordinary conduct of my ever increasing business. I will dispose of one machine which cannot be used for anything but commercial publication the size of "Forward Janesville." My contract was with the Chamber of Commerce for the Merchants' association, and did not call for a total of $2400 for publication of the magazine for two years. I made certain arrangements by which it could do so, with the advertisers pro rating a certain sum to be paid on the unexpired portion of the contract, thereby reimbursing me for the money I put in necessary equipment to publish the magazine.

I am making the details of the transaction which I consider of no interest to the general public, were not properly presented.

McKUNE GOES INTO CONTRACTING WORK

Street Commissioner Thomas McKune has gone into the contracting business for the city. He has been assigned the task of building the new coal bin in the rear of the city hall. Plans call for concrete foundation large enough to hold 100 tons.

Mr. McKune has completed the 10 feet of excavation necessary, and the pouring of concrete has commenced. The bin will be completely underground; a hole will be cut in the city hall foundation to connect it with the boiler room.

The council got bids for the job but considered them too high, so decided to build it with city help.

SMITH WOMAN SAYS SHE KILLED HAMON

She kept looking at the black patent leather square suitcase. At Waukegan she stopped at a restaurant. She said she'd been traveling night and day and wanted a bowl of soup.

Narrow Escape for Officer

She asked me in, too, inside, she took off her furs and coat and lifted up her veil.

Just then a policeman or a marshal of some kind with a big shiny star came in and sat down. He kept watching the woman. She noticed it and drank the soup hurriedly. Then she said to me:

"I'm going out in the car. You pay the check and I'll settle with you later." When I climbed in the car she had two automatic pistols in her lap. "Get out of here and get out quick," she ordered.

I sped up. I only had a pen-knife. We went fast as far as Hillsboro. All the time she had the two pistols in her lap. One was a Colt's and the other a Colt's 38. And she was ready to use them.

Woman Begins to Talk

I asked the Hillsboro garage man for the road to Waco. We got to talking—it was an awful lonesome stretch of road.

"What are you so uneasy about?" she asked.

"She didn't say anything for a minute or so."

"Haven't you been reading the newspapers?" she asked.

"Why, yes," I said.

"Well you ought to know what's wrong then."

"I haven't noticed anything," I said.

"Was it a shooting scrape?"

"Yes," then she didn't talk for a few minutes. Finally she asked: "Do you know an aviator at San Antonio?"

"No."

"Do you know a Frank Ketch, or a man named Dunlap, or a man named Nicholas, there?"

"No."

"Tell me something," she said, "what's the best kind of a gun to shoot a man with—an old gun or a new one?"

"Why, an old gun," I said. "If it's an old gun it's sure to be rusty, and the bullet doesn't kill him, blood poison will."

"Wish I'd known that," she said. "My gun was not one."

"Why?" I asked.

"I'll tell you," she said. "I shot a man in Ardmore."

"Who was he?"

"I won't tell you. If you read the newspapers you'll know in twenty-four hours anyhow."

"Why did you shoot him?"

"He lied to me. We quarreled during the afternoon and he lied to me. Then he came in drunk and tried to make me do things a brute or worse wouldn't do."

Victim and Wife Made Up

"You see, I've been with him ever since I was 7. He's married, but he and his wife were separated. They just got reconciled."

"How many times did you shoot him?" I asked.

"Just once; I aimed at his middle," she said.

"Do you think he will die?"

"I most certainly do. I hope so, anyway."

"Does any one else know this?"

"No. There aren't but us two that know it, and no one else over will. I know he'll never tell, and if he dies he'll never tell. I know I won't tell it either."

"Well, cheer up," I said. "Maybe it isn't as bad as you think."

Friends Show True Color.

"Yes, but it is," she said, and she began to cry. "He's worth a lot of money. And some of the men he thought were his friends helped me get away. I left my jewels there and my diamonds. They were worth several thousand. I gave them to a friend in Ardmore to keep for me."

"Three of the men packed my trunks and shipped them to Kansas City on a ticket. I didn't even see it done."

"I know an aviator at San Antonio. He used to be in the army. He's a great friend of my brother. If I could get to him I'd be safe. My brother is driving my car down this way to meet me. She gave me a $50 bill. She must have had $10,000."

I went in and got a ticket to El Paso on the train that left about 3:50 p. m. It was then 2 o'clock in the morning. I then went up to the hotel with her.

A. Gossard's Tip.

Then she paid me $50 more for the trip and gave me a $100 tip. She wrote down my name on a slip of paper and I think she registered under that name at the hotel in El Paso.

The last I saw of her was through the hotel window. She had a pencil and was writing in the register.

U. W. ENTERS FIGHT FOR COUNTY AGENT

Experiment Station Objects to Term, "Glassco's University Bank."

Exception to the statements of some of the members of the Rock county board of supervisors that County Agent R. T. Glassco was giving too much "University Bank" to the farmers of the county is taken by the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin in two letters to the Chicago Tribune.

Various statements are made indicating to show where the experiments and suggestions of the university have been adopted by the Rock county farmers resulting in better and bigger crops.

Pedigreed Seed, One Benefit. Writing to the Chicago Tribune, assistant director of the experiment station of the college, points out several facts while at the same time information available showing the particular number of farmers in any one county who have been aided, yet it is said to be the fact that the greater proportion of Wisconsin farmers in all counties grow pedigreed varieties of corn which have been developed on the experiment station farms at Madison or in the northern part of the state. Likewise, nearly all the barley grown in Wisconsin is of the pedigreed variety developed at Madison. The same, he says, "is true of oats and other small grains. Striking results have been secured in the few years with the development of high variety and also high yielding strains of pedigreed rye and winter wheat."

For Milk and Tobacco. The letter states that the tobacco now raised in the state is the strain which has been developed at the station and which is decidedly superior in quality of leaf to that which was previously grown, and is more disease resistant. He points out that the Rock county is largely a dairy community, the work done by the college in bringing to the attention of the public the value of milk has resulted in the increase of the dairying industry, declaring: "Work of this character is of paramount importance in educating the city consumer to the value of milk for him as a food. When he thoroughly appreciates the high value of milk, he will be more ready to pay a price which will make it profitable for the producer to furnish the milk."

Continuing in his attempt to show that the work of the experiment station has not been "bunk," Mr. Morrison says: "As Rock county is one of the leading swine counties in the state, which has been done recently in the working out of four experimental farms for pork production. I will also call attention to the work on 'hairless pigs.' One of the best breeders, Edward Barker, Janesville, has had occasion to accomplish considerable work carried out by the college. One year he had considerable trouble from hairless pigs, but through following the recommendation of the station he has gotten over this trouble entirely."

Three Drainage Projects. Additional information sent by the college shows that agricultural engineering has been sent by it into the county to work out drainage projects and to work with groups of farmers. They worked out projects at Twp. 2, Sec. 1, Twp. 3, Sec. 1, and Goose creek. Besides plans have been drawn and reports made to County Judge Charles L. Fildes in accordance with the new state drainage law. S. H. Hiday and Frank Johnson, Evansville, were helped in drainage. G. A. Holmes, Beloit, was sent bulletins on the drainage and the city drainage engineer of Beloit was sent the manual on community drainage.

23 in Experiment Association. Following up the breeding of pure seeds, of which the college states Wisconsin has become the center of the United States, the letters say there are 23 members in Rock county of the Wisconsin Experiment association distributed: 5 at Janesville; 9 at Beloit; 8 at Madison; 4 at Edgerton; 1 at Clinton; and 4 at Evansville, many of whom have been members since 1913. Further, it is reported, November 1920, it is reported, a national reputation with seeds from the experiment association.

Another means through which the college reaches the farmer of Rock county, says the report, is in the analysis of soil to permit the better use of fertilizers and growth of better crops. Fourteen such tests were made in Rock county during the year, it is claimed, and 16 are arranged for next summer, and it is possible that several demonstrations will be held with the county agent, if he remains.

Agent is "Connecting Link." Swine demonstrations have been held under the auspices of the college. One Labor day at Twp. 2, Sec. 1, and exhibition of fairs, pigs and self feeders for fattening swine. It was held with the assistance of the county agent, says the letter. In closing it is remarked that more than 500 farmers of Rock county are on the mailing lists of the bulletins and publications of the agricultural college, and that many of these pamphlets are distributed in addition through the county agent, who is called the "connecting link in the entire chain."

GAS VICTIMS OF MONROE BURIED

Family of Five Found Dead From Asphyxiation in Home.

Monroe, Dec. 2.—The five victims of asphyxiation whose death, believed to have occurred at their home here a week ago Wednesday night, but which was not discovered until Tuesday afternoon, were buried this afternoon in the Greenwood cemetery. Funeral services were held from St. John's Evangelical church, the Rev. F. A. Smith officiating.

The quietest father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Butts, their two babies, Henry Jr., aged 2, and Harold, aged one, and Mrs. Butts' brother, Edward Pehl, were overcome by gas from a defective furnace as they slept. It is believed that they were spending the first night in their new home in this city, having moved in from their farm that day.

Asleep in One Room. The five were found in bed in the same room with windows closed. The brother was lying on a mattress on the floor, the mother and father in a bed, a babe in each of the mother's arms.

Investigation of the furnace showed that there was no draft. The coroner's jury had a fire started and drew well. It is presumed that the draft had been shut off for the night. The furnace was found to be in the kitchen when a stove pipe had Immediate loans of $50,000,000 from government funds to aid farmers in the Montgomery, Ala., district, is proposed by Senator Hitchcock, democrat, Nebraska, in a bill drawn today after a conference with Gov. Harding of that state. The bill is expected to be introduced in the senate next week.

Lights Burn at Night on Honor Roll of Miners. (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Pittsburgh, Dec. 2.—Hillside overlooking the Monongahela river in the heart of the coal fields near Pittsburgh, two lights illuminating the honor roll of miners of that district who participated in the world war, are burning every night, and have been burning since the tablet was erected more than a year ago.

The expense of the illumination here, John Richardson, a leader at the Sunnyside mine, who contracted with a powder company nearby to furnish the powder, has been admitted by the police. In the war, and is doing this, it is said, as a mere matter of patriotism. The roll bears the names of 150 miners who were employed at the Gallatin, Manow and Sunnyside mines, and has six gold stars.

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER X REMINISCENCE

One afternoon in early May, a Saturday that had been a bit and as cloudless as the best of the June weather, we were sitting out on the farmhouse porch. We had all worked hard that day and this was a little interlude between the day's cleaning, the preparation for the giant dinner that always took place Sunday, the preparation of that evening's meal, and the telling.

Ester was resting; she had been at it hard since early morning. Laura was peeling potatoes. I was doing some work for Vi. The dress. And Vi herself was out on the lawn in the sun, her hair hanging about her, studying. The light caught her gold hair, shaming that day, and made it shine like polished metal. From time to time I glanced at her, my eyes drawn by the sheer pleasure of looking at the brilliant mass of hair.

Ester, lying back in a rocker, followed my eyes.

"She has the hair, hasn't she?" she asked. "Looks well after it's been washed. Now I never can make mine do anything I want for weeks. I wish her hair was too long to look well either. But Vi can do hers up as nice right after washing as before."

"I don't know where Vi got her yellow hair," she went on. "The hair is mostly dark—Jim's hair was black, and she was dark, too once—a casual glance at my mouse-colored head followed. 'My mother had sort of nice hair, but it was brown, too. Vi doesn't look like either family; guess she was sort of slipped in.'"

These elementary studies in heredity are common among mothers and are a hopeful sign. The only trouble seems to be that the mothers speculate as to where the children obtained certain characteristics. If they would only go further and study the traits of the families, in order to combat inherited weakness. But Ester, of course, never went in for anything so profound.

"Sometimes I think Vi looks like me, sometimes like Jim," she looked like you, when she was a baby. But Lord, you don't look no more alike!" She laughed comfortably, swaying back and forth in the rocker.

"Aunt Enid's a brunette," Laura supplied.

"You was—were—a pretty kid, Enid, as I remember you." Plainly Ester was in a reminiscent mood. "You used to have some good hair, but it was fuzzy and dark, of course. You had a nice little nose, too. Remember how I used to admire it because it was small?"

"Aha, it's a sign of age when you start talking about your childhood," Laura said.

"I never denied I was old," Ester said. "Something in Ester's tone made me feel I had denied the fact that I was old—it held notes of accusation. I remembered the white dress and blue sash incident, and my face felt hot."

"In middle-aged and I've got a grown-up family," Ester went on. "My job in life is mostly done; it will be when you get married. Of course, I've got to keep Jim comfortable."

Was there nothing in life but that, wondered Ester, to grow up, to bear children, to keep a family comfortable, and then—die? What of the woman like myself, denied love and a husband and children? Should we not have died in the very beginning? Surely there was something else—Ester's voice went on:

"Enid was pretty, and she was awful romantic. Her mother had sentimental ideas, and I named her out of it. Look, when we was—I mean when we were both kids, we used to play real lively games, and Enid would spin up trees and go for fences—remember the day we tried to ride the red cow, and you got thrown over the wall—?"

"I laughed and nodded. Those days did seem dim and far off."

"And when we weren't playing wild, when we got older, Enid began reading—mostly fairy tales, you remember? though you were getting big, 12 or 13. But you liked the romantic stories."

"Then I got married, and Enid seemed to grow up awful fast. Any way, after Jim and me moved here, and just before Enid came here to live, she seemed to grow up overnight. I remember the first time Mark Upjohn saw you, you was a kid, and the next visit, you was grown up."

"I started a little. Mark Upjohn! I had forgotten him. I doubt whether I had thought of him for years."

Laura stopped peeling potatoes, and started.

"Mark Upjohn! Related to the Upjohns at Sander's Corners?" she asked.

"Son of Hannah Upjohn and Marcus. She was cousin to Mary Baxter out on the farm, then married in Homer Falls. Then, Hannah and Mary are both cousins of the Dwyers."

Enid had all the family genealogies of the neighborhood at her finger tips. And it was a complicated subject, for all the people around our way were related.

"Mark Upjohn!" Ester repeated. "He used to be crazy over Enid. She could have had him too, if she'd tried. He hasn't been around here for years."

Tomorrow—Plans.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

I returned my Cousin Grace's visit last night, and there was still no sign of the cut glass pickle dish we sent her for a wedding present. You'd think she would have the common good management to at least display it when I go to see her, wouldn't you Joe? It had just made me wish she wouldn't return my visit and then I won't have to return hers, because otherwise it will be an endless circle and I'll have to go there every once in a while and the unappearance of the pickle dish will be a constant memorandum that my taste in wedding presents is being belittled. Oh well, as Mrs. Fink says, you can't please some of the people all of the time.

Grace's husband, the insurance salesman, was there part of the evening, but I remembered your advice and every time he tried to talk insurance in a personal way I bisected the conversation to other channels such as politics and religion and similar open subjects. He's a terribly good looking man, Joe, but I'd rather have you with all your homeliness of outline, if I do say so myself.

I suppose you're wondering how I managed to get out without taking the baby. Well the reason is I've got a new nurse girl to take the place of Sophie who as I told you left without even taking French leave. The new girl's name is Nora Rafferty, though she's not Irish notwithstanding her brogue, which she says is a mere inheritance. However, a person's accidental ways is a mere inheritance. So long as her heart is in the right place and they have enough natural grace to do their work without falling over their own feet, especially at such vital moments as when they're carrying the baby. So far Nora has tripped little or none.

I agree cordially with your remarks about not forcing the baby into an over-education—before his mind is strong enough to master it. Nothing is so inappropriate as a child with its head stuffed full of questions that its parents are in no position to answer. However, I don't think we have any active cause to worry about Baby having any great monopoly of brain power. Except when he sees his bottle approaching I haven't noticed him giving any undue signs of premature intelligence. When it comes to susceptibility to food he seems to take after you, Joe. (X) From me. (X) From Baby. Lovingly.

TESSIE.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About two weeks ago one of my girl friends called up and asked me to have a date with a boy she knew. We went out dining and when he brought me home he asked me to write. I didn't promise whether I would write or not.

He didn't ask for another date and I didn't ask him to come again, as I supposed it was his place to ask me.

Since then my girl friend has seen him and she said he wanted her to ask me for another date with him. She told him that he would have to ask me. Then he said he would call me, but he hadn't called yet. Do you think I ought to write to him?

Do you think the reason he does not ask for another date is because I don't invite him to come again? If that is the reason, do you think I ought to write to him asking him to come to see me sometime, or should I let him go?

I am not in love, as some girls say, but I would hate to have him feel that I didn't like his company at all, because I did.

SUSIE ANN.

I would advise you to let the boy go. When he wants to see you again, let him write to you. You would give him a chance to think you were running after him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please print a list of things to eat which will not make one fat?

IGNORANCE.

First of all, do not drink liquids with your meals. Besides, avoid potatoes and other starchy foods, fat meats, milk and eggs. Fruits, except bananas, will not increase your weight. Lean meat which is thoroughly cooked is all right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fifteen years of age and have a boy friend twenty-two. He is a gentleman everywhere and so my

TRIED RECIPES

Hollandaise Sauce—One-half cup butter, two egg yolks, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, one third cup boiling water.
Beat butter with cold water and divide in three parts. Put first piece in saucepan containing boiling water and stir with a wire whisk until butter is melted; add second piece of butter, and, as it thickens, the third. Add water, cook a minute and add salt and cayenne.

Raisin Puff—Two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup shortening, two eggs, one cup milk, one cup seeded raisins, chopped. Mix the contents thoroughly and steam an hour in a buttered mold.

Sauce—One-half cup sugar, two tablespoons melted butter, one-half cup boiling water. Let this come to a boil and put in two tablespoons of cornstarch mixed in water. Flavor with vanilla.

Blue Mince—Three tablespoons cornstarch, two and one-half cups milk, one-third cup of sugar, pinch of salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup of chopped dates.
Stir the cornstarch and one-quarter cup cold milk together adding sugar. Scald remaining milk and pour over the mixture; stir until thick, add chopped dates and cook in a double boiler for twelve minutes. Pour into wet mold or mold and let cool. When ready to serve turn from mold and decorate with whole stoned dates. Serve with boiled custard sauce.

CHILDREN'S TEA PARTY
Are you one of those mothers who think children must have a great amount of time and attention paid to them if they want to give a party? Instead of having a big party, with much bother and expense, try letting the child be her own hostess, having a friend or two in once in a while just as you do. Milk and cookies or cambric tea and crackers are sufficient refreshment and give much joy. The children will learn to play together harmoniously and sociably without having a great deal of fuss made over them. A toy tea set that is large enough for real use is a source of joy to the child, but small coffee

WHAT SHALL I DO?

Injustice—or a Chip?

"Dear Miss Page—I'm so unhappy. I think you will help me. Every thing is going wrong in my office and it's so unfair. I'm working hard but the boss thinks it's another girl; they don't give me credit for anything and set everything that gets done down to her. I say it's my fault. What would you do?—A Very Unhappy Girl."

First, have a heart-to-heart talk with yourself, and make very sure you are not imagining most of that. If you are sure you are not, then turn to the others to be blame—altogether. You know, we usually find when we're fair that it's six to one and half a dozen of the other. Are you sure?

If you know you have reason to complain, you must decide whether you want your position enough to fight for it. If so, go straight to the head of your office and have it out. Tell him frankly what's going on; ask him to watch and see if you aren't right; tell him you are working hard and mean to try harder if there is going to be a chance for you to stay on and progress, but that if not you want to look for another position where your work will count for the company and you can be happy.

I think that if you are very frank and fair, and show him that you want to talk it all over for the benefit of your work, he will be glad to help you. But be sure it isn't a chip on your shoulder—for he will surely knock it off, to stay, if it is!

About Questions
"Dear Miss Page—I want to ask you about some things, but I don't know whether you will answer me or not, and can I ask you anything and will you keep my questions to yourself?—Mrs. D."

I certainly will answer you personally if you send me a stamped and addressed envelope; otherwise, through the columns of your paper as soon as I have room. You can ask me anything you wish about matters of etiquette, social conduct, and so on, and I will do my best to help you. And most assuredly I will keep everything you write entirely to myself!

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

CORNMEAL GRUEL

Mix two tablespoons cornmeal with one tablespoon flour and a little salt; add enough water to make a thin mixture and stir into one and one-half pints of boiling water. Let it boil slowly one hour if directly over the flame, and dilute with milk; or it may be made with milk and cooked in a double boiler for three and one-quarter hours.

Is a Scientifically Made Bread
AND IS WRAPPED

DO YOU know that the best bread baked today is made under scientific control and according to scientific methods?

Baking bread is no longer a "hit or miss" proposition, it is a serious responsibility. Science has taken a hand in bread making today. It prescribes the methods, the machinery and the formulas. Good bread must be made to scientific standards.

HOLSUM is a scientifically made bread. By that we mean:

First: the materials which enter into it are selected by chemists under laboratory test for their purity, and food value.

Second: The HOLSUM formula has been prescribed and accurately tested by food chemists. Many loaves were baked with our materials in a famous food laboratory in Chicago and subjected to a severe scientific test before we began baking HOLSUM. This test took into consideration the texture, the flavor, the volume, the color, the shape and food value.

Third: These famous food scientists recommended that HOLSUM be wrapped at the bakery. This is done, so that HOLSUM comes to you not only made from the purest and best materials, but is also protected against dust and germs.

In every respect HOLSUM is a scientific bread. It is a bread of full purity, and full nutritive value and absolutely clean.

AMERICANIZATION IS WESTERN GOLF PLAN

Cleveland, O., Dec. 2.—The Western Golf association does not seek war with the United States Golf association, Wilbur H. Brooks, president of the Western Golf association, said today in discussing the probability of a rupture between the two major organizations.

"The Western association," Brooks said, "has made certain recommendations, believing the United States Golf association has failed in its function as the governing body of American golf."

The U. S. G. A. has failed to give the American game a democratic administration and a code that is demanded by the climatic conditions of the country.

In changing the name from the Western Golf association to the American Golf association and in extending its jurisdiction to include the Western association plans to give American golf a thoroughly democratic government, he added.

The new constitution is so arranged that the board of directors will annually represent not less than seven states.

TUBE THROUGH THE EARTH
Recently, at a meeting of some prominent men in England, the question of sinking a shaft into the earth to a depth of from 12 to 30 miles, as a possible new source of power was discussed. The cost of sinking such a shaft to 12 miles would be at least $20,000,000 and would take about 35 years to complete, this being about 10 times the depth of any shaft in existence.

The greatest problem to be reckoned with would be that of heat. It being definitely known that the temperature rises one degree to every 70 feet of descent. During the first two or three miles the waste matter could be hoisted to the surface by means of a cable, but beyond this cables of the best steel would break under their own weight.

Although the waste could doubtless tackle this tremendous task, the problems involved would be of quite a novel and difficult nature.

GIVING A GUESS.

"Oyster, perhaps," suggested the girl.—"Louisville Courier-Journal."

Few Modern Hurlers Have Won
30 Victories in a Single Season

Some of the hurlers who hung up thirty or more victories in a season. Above, left to right: Grover Alexander, Cy Young and Jack Coombs. Below: Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and Joe McGinnity.

When Jim Bagby, Indian hurler, hung up 31 victories for his club in the 1920 campaign he turned a neat trick—and a fairly rare one. Few modern day pitchers have accomplished this feat. Cy Young leads this exclusive set. He scored that many five different seasons. "Big Six" Mathewson rang up that many four times for McGraw. Joe McGinnity, the Iron Man, won 32 of those four years, pitching with Matty Alexander, Johnson, Coombs, and Joe Wood are also in the select list.

THE ROMANCE OF THE MODERN AUTOMOBILE
Twenty-five years ago there were in America only four automobiles. One of these was in a circus, while another was on exhibition as a mechanical freak.

Today there are eight million automobiles in use in America. Eight hundred and fifty thousand of these are trucks.

Iowa and Nebraska have an automobile for every six people. On any given Sunday the whole population could go joy-riding.

There is one car in the United States for every 14 people. The rest of the world has to worry along with one car for every 2,530.

These stupendous figures kindle the imagination. They are the manifestation of a social and economic revolution.

First of all they mean the investment of billions of dollars in a new industry, thus shifting the economic center of gravity to a new point, necessitating many important financial and industrial readjustments.

Then they mean good roads, which one fact is calculated to change our whole merchandising and transportation system and at the same time profoundly affect the living conditions and character of millions of people.

Aside from the salutary changes which the automobile has brought to country life are its effects upon all life in city as well as country. The great outstanding social result of the automobile is the increased fluidity of life. It has dissolved, as it by magic, fixed conditions and habits, and started everybody to moving on.

This may or may not be a good thing, but the fact remains to be reckoned with.—Leslie's Weekly.

Instead of the eight teams that were planned, the Wisconsin Industrial Basketball league has dwindled to four with prospects that one of the teams, Racine, will drop out shortly after the playoffs season comes. The fact that that team gets only three home games while the others get seven each is not expected to go well with the townspeople.

The tennis in the circuit are Belmont Fairies, New London Edisons, Green Bay Paper Mills and Racine. Outside semi-pros will be booked to fill the schedules.

The letter asserts that soviet and socialist propaganda has become so aggressive in Mexico that "it is necessary to combat ideas with other ideas" and for that reason an extended list of questions and answers are set forth.

The archbishop of Mexico, who is at the head of the clergy in the republic, has given his sanction to the campaign and information is given that as soon as the work is started in Mexico it will be extended first to Guatemala and then to other Central American republics.

FARMERS PREVAIL IN NEW ASSEMBLY, LAWYERS IN SENATE

(By Associated Press.) Madison.—Farmers' control of the assembly of Wisconsin's legislature this year, with lawyers numerically ahead in the senate. Records in the office of the secretary of state show that 44 out of 100 assemblymen are engaged in agriculture, and that eight out of 33 senators are practicing law. There are 10 lawyers in the senate, and five farmers in the assembly. A total of 145 occupations are represented by the 133 legislators. Two are farmer-lawyers, others are lawyers, merchants, mechanics and laborers-farmers. Farmers fill 44 out of the 106 occupations represented in the senate, and lawyers fill 14 out of 42 in the senate, where the division between occupations is more even.

Complexion Is Republican
The political complexion of the legislature is shown by 27 republicans senators out of 33, and 52 republican assemblymen out of 100. There are two democrats in each branch, with four socialists in the assembly and one in the senate. The new members failed to class themselves in most instances as progressive or regular republicans, but registered as farmer-lawyer republicans.

The assembly has two clerks, one architect, three corporation officers, one fisherman, one hotel keeper, and one live stock buyer, while none of those occupations are represented in the senate. Legislators Are Bankers Eight bankers will be in the coming legislature, four in each branch: a doctor in each branch; eleven mechanics in the assembly and seven in the senate; nine merchants, seven in the assembly and four in the senate; six real estate dealers, four in the senate and five in the assembly; five laborers, four in the assembly and one in the senate; and eight retired workers, six in the assembly and two in the senate.
